Immediately after seizing power in 1933, the Nazis made it clear that they sought a racial reordering of the globe. They immediately began implementing the dual policy of 1) developing a racially fit group and 2) destroying those groups that were undesirable, alien, and dangerous such as the disabled, un-productive, mentally ill, alcoholics, work-shy, prostitutes, homosexuals, Jews, and Gypsies. This course will explore the Third Reich's racial policy by examining the roots, formulation, and implementation of Nazi racial-anthropological and racial-hygienic and eugenic measures. By 1937, the Nazis realized that only war and world domination would allow them to racially re-order the globe. Under the cover of the war that started two years later, the Nazis managed to fully implement a racial-hygienic program that led to the deaths of millions of innocent victims.
